Deep Springs

2017

Sam Contis is a California based photographer. Her book Deep Springs combines photographs of the human body and the Sierra Nevada desert with differing compositional elements such as macro and micro views. In her book, there is no concept of time. Each photograph could be a contemporary work or a past work. Even when time is disregarded, it is still prevalent in the photographs in the form of erosion, facial expressions, or any other physical changes.
