Time Slice Hong Kong in 25 Photos

2017

One thing that makes Dan Marker-Moore stand out is his technicality. A quick glance into his photographs, and immediately his use of experimentation and exploration is apparent. A time slice is an image formulated by cutting and assembling different photos from a time-lapse. In this particular time slice, Dan Marker-Moore used 25 photographs over the span of 45 minutes to highlight the different phases of the bustling city of Hong Kong.
